

The Swedish Security Service is investigating gross sabotage concerning Nord Stream

Published 28 September 2022

The Swedish Security Service has taken over the criminal investigation into the events concerning Nord Stream from the Swedish Police Authority. The offence currently being investigated is gross sabotage.

The investigation is being conducted by the Swedish Security Service, as this may concern a serious crime which, at least to some extent, targets Swedish interests, and it cannot be ruled out that foreign powers are behind it.

The investigation is being conducted by the Swedish Security Service and is headed by a National Security Unit prosecutor.
